Quotes From The News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

WASHINGTON — Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., before the House overwhelmingly approved his additions to the Defense appropriations bill:

"So help me God, we are going to have a follow-on bomber if it kills everyone in the D-O-D (Department of Defense) and I die in the process."

CHICAGO — James Holzman, commanding police officer in the riot-torn Puerto Rican section:

"Tonight it has been relatively quiet... because we saw to it that people didn't create any trouble."

EUGENE, Ore. — Annette Buchanan, coed editor of the University of Oregon newspaper, who faces jail unless she reveals identities of five marijuana users she interviewed:

"I feel I have a duty to myself and to those who trusted me."

GRENADE, Miss. — A state highway patrolman, describing the 350 civil rights marchers completing James Meredith's walk to the state capital in Jackson:

"This is a great assembly of kooks."

A Bible Thought For Today

Behold, I send you forth as lambs among wolves.

—Luke 10:3.
Jesus realized that He was giving His followers a tremendously difficult assignment. It has never been easy to proclaim the Gospel of Christ.

J. B. Jones store in Dexter was entered last night by a person or persons. The store is located at the top of the hill in Dexter, and was entered at the south rear door. A crowbar was used to gain admittance, according to Deputy Cohen Stubblefield. Nothing was taken and the thief must have been scared away.

Mrs. Georgia Wear, teacher in the Murray School System, was reappointed today as a member of the State Textbook Commission. She is just completing a two year term on the nine member commission.

The four civic clubs of Murray were hosts yesterday to the players, coaches, and other guests connected with the annual North-South game. The dinner was held yesterday at noon at the Murray Woman's Club House.

J. Grogan, M. Thurmond, R. Danner, J. Morton, J. Wetherly, K. Wallis, J. Wilson, Red Howe, S. Williams, and J.
Weatherly are the ten leading batters of the Murray Little League in games played through June 8.

The Almanac

by United Press International

Today is Wednesday, June 15, the 166th day of 1966 with 199 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

There are no evening stars.
American sculptor and writer Malvina Hoffman was born on this day in 1887.

On this day in history:
In 1788, Benjamin Franklin and his son demonstrated the relationship between electricity and lightning when Franklin launched a kite in Philadelphia during a summer storm.

In 1944, American troops invaded the Mariana Islands landing on Saipan about 1500 miles south of Tokyo.

In 1960, Premier Khrushchev asked President Eisenhower to postpone his visit to Japan because of anti-American riots.

In 1962, Lt. Col. Valery Bykov-sky became the first Soviet astronaut to be launched into space.

A thought for the day — French novelist Balzac: "Love is limited by our limited strength... it draws its power from living and giving."

Four classes for mentally re-

When Castro introduced "land re-

property worth in excess of one billion dollars. This means that many thousands of shareholders were deprived of property in which they had a rightful interest. As American corporate shares are held by people in all walks of life, "land all levels of income.

And consider how "land reform" affects the people living on the land. It means the breakup of viable farms. This is the story of "land

Africa to Latin America. It is not

Latin America has real agricultural problems, but they will not be settled by dividing workable farms into tiny patches of land. Such farms cannot produce enough to and machinery.

What Latin America needs is modern, American-style farming business that can be carried on in an efficient way without socialist

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT
Southern States Industrial Council

REVOLUTIONARY RHETORIC

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's political extremism was sharpened in early May when he added his voice to those urging "land reform" in Latin America. "A revolution is coming," he declared, "a revolution which will be peaceful if we are wise enough; compassionate if we care enough; successful if we are fortunate enough."

This shallow rhetoric of "social justice" just doesn't bear up under examination. The slogan of "land reform" has been a communist slogan in Latin America for decades.

It is not reform that the Latin leftists want, but the crippling of capitalism in Central and South America.

Cuba has had revolutionary "land reform" under Castro. And the result of it has been impoverishment of Cubans and lower productivity on the land. "Land reform," in the eyes of Latin revolutionists, means confiscation of private property and distribution of it among people who have no right to it. It is a negation of years of hard work and sacrifice on the part of the owners.

Another and more accurate word for revolutionary "land reform" is theft.
Sen. Kennedy surely would not like it if a law were passed breaking up the Kennedy dynasty fortune and distributing it among other people. Yet he recommends this for people in Latin countries.

When Castro introduced "land reform" in Cuba, he seized American property worth in excess of one billion dollars. This means that many thousands of shareholders
were deprived of property in which they had a rightful interest. As

Jim Boswell Is Known As The Funny Bone, Minnesota Twins

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Jim Boswell is known as the funny bone of the Minnesota Twins. But he'd rather be known as a regular starting pitcher.

The 21-year-old righthander, who keeps 'em laughing off the mound but doesn't want to be a joke on it, may reach his goal if he keeps up his present pace.

Boswell, fighting for a regular spot in manager Sam Rice's rotation won his third straight complete game in eight days Tuesday night when he pitched a five-hitter as the Twins downed Kansas City 6-3.

"I don't want that goofy reputation," Boswell claims, even though he's got a keen sense of humor and keeps the clubhouse rocking with laughter with his imitations of bird whistles, frogs and jungle animals.

"I want to be serious, I can win a lot of games for this club—if I get a chance to pitch."

Used Sparingly
With Jim Kaat, Jim Grant, and Camilo Pascual carrying the brunt of the pitching load for the Twins, Boswell was idle for 10 and 11 days between his first two starts this season and 22 days before his next start. He spent some time in the bullpen while suffering from arm trouble.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston won the second game of a doubleheader from Cleveland, 11-7, to knock the Indians out of first place after the Indians won the opener 8-7; Baltimore took over first with a 2-1 victory over New York; Washington edged Detroit 3-2 and California whipped Chicago 10-4.

In the National League, Houston shut out Los Angeles 3-0, San Francisco topped Chicago 11-7, Cincinnati blanked Pittsburgh 5-0, St. Louis whipped New York 9-3 and Atlanta stopped Philadelphia 11-6. Boswell struck out 11 and walked only one while chalking up his third straight victory with the five-hitter against the A's. The Twins won the game for him in the eighth when Earl Battey doubled in a run. The Twins added a pair of insurance runs in the eighth.

Thomas Humes

The Red Sox let "George" do it salvaging the second game of their doubleheader with Cleveland. George Thomas hit a solo homer to break a 7-7 tie in the ninth and George Scott followed with his second homer of the game, a three-run blast to wrap it up. George Smith also homered for the Sox in the game.

Fred Whitfield drove in five runs with a homer and a single as the Indians built up an 8-2 lead in the first game before hanging on for a one-run victory as Sam McDowell came out of the bullpen to get the final out.

Andy Elchebarrren tripped in the tying run and scored the winning run on Luis Aparicio's single in the eighth inning to hand Baltimore its victory over New York and move the Orioles into first place. Stu Miller pitched three innings of hitless relief ball to gain the victory while Jim Bouton was tagged with the defeat.

Willie Kirkland singled in Fred Valentine with the winning run in the seventh inning to hand Washington its triumph over Detroit. Phil Ortega went 9-2-3 innings to get the victory and Dick Linares came out of the bullpen to get the final out. Detroit's Billy Mobergquette, who was knocked out in the seventh inning, suffered the loss.

Ed Kirkpatrick blasted two homers and knocked in four runs to lead California to its easy victory over Chicago. Dean Chance went the first six innings and got credit for his fourth victory in 12 decisions while Johnny Buzhardt was charged with the loss.

Sandy Koufax Number Came Up On Tuesday

By JEFF MEYERS
UPI Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax, number came up Tuesday night and he won. Larry Dierker's didn't and he won.

Koufax owned an 11-1 record against the National League this season and just happened to possess an 11-1 career slate over Houston. The Astros however, didn't let coincidence or Koufax stand in their way, whipping the Los Angeles star southpaw 3-0 on Dierker's five-hitter.

A 19-year-old righthander with exceptional control, Dierker usually plays a guessing game with Manager Grady Hatton during starting assignments. As a precautionary measure, Hatton yanks Dierker after about 110 pitches to guard against overwork. But Dierker never knows when his number is up.

Control Was Excellent
Although Dierker came within three pitches of reaching his limit Tuesday night, it's doubtful that Hatton would have taken him out. In scoring his first major league shutout, Dierker's control was excellent. He didn't walk a batter, struck out six and scattered the five hits in separate innings.

Elsewhere in the senior circuit, San Francisco whopped Chicago 11-7, Cincinnati blanked Pittsburgh 5-0, Atlanta stopped Philadelphia 11-6 and St. Louis drubbed New York 9-2.

In the American League, Baltimore took over the league lead by downing New York 2-1, Boston whipped Cleveland 11-7 after losing 8-7, Washington shaded Detroit 3-2, California bombed Chicago 10-4 and Minnesota ripped Kansas City 6-3.

Koufax, who said he experienced "control problems," gave up seven hits, struck out only six and failed to finish the first game in his last nine starts. Bob Aspromonte hit a home off Koufax and Chuck Harrison singled in two runs. Bob Miller worked the final inning for the Dodgers.

McCovey Homers

Willie McCovey's two-run homer in the seventh inning snapped a 7-7 tie as the Giants strangled their N. L. lead to two games over the Dodgers, San Francisco erupted for four other homers during the game, with Willie Mays and Tom Haller hitting two-run smashes while Jim Ray Hart and Ollie Brown each slammed solo shots.

Jim Maloney won his seventh game of the season by pitching a three-hitter. The Cincinnati righthander was rolling along with only a 1-0 lead until Dick Simpson legged out an inside-the-park homer following a single by Tony Perez in the ninth. Perez' single accounted for a run in the third.

Hank Aaron, the major league home run leader, slammed his 31st of the season after Woody Woodward's single in the seventh and drove home another run with a single during a three-run fifth-inning rally that broke a 1-1 deadlock. Joe Torre's pinch-hit triple accounted for three Atlanta runs.

The Cardinals shelled three New York pitchers for six runs during the second stanza, with Jerry Buchek contributing a two-run homer. Lou Brock collected four hits, including a homer, while the Mets' Ed Kranepool belted a home run to highlight his 3-for-3 performance.

"MOD GEAR" WINDOW SHOW — Paris model Elaine Jamot, 19, is helped into a skirt by window dresser John Lambert in the window of a clothing store on Kings Highway in Brooklyn, N.Y., where "Mod gear" women's clothing in the far-out British style, is being displayed just like on London's Carnaby Street, with live models. Two spectators peering through the window pane seem to get a kick out of it.

Those Clothes Make the Man Mad

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This man I am engaged to says if I want to be married in a formal wedding gown, it's O. K. with him, but he's not going to get all dressed up in a "monkey suit."

When we went to the wedding rental place, the man showed Sander what he was supposed to wear for a formal wedding, and Sander said, "Over my dead body!"

He would only have to wear it once, Abby, and it could be made to fit him comfortably, but Sander says he is going to wear his new dark blue suit with a regular shirt and tie. And when Sander says something, that is final! How do you reason with a man like that?

IN TEARS

DEAR IV: Your fiancé is an individualist. Wear what you wish, and let Sander do the same. It will appear odd, but the ties will be no less binding.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and no raving beauty, but I am not ugly either. I was over at my girl friend's house one night and she called up "C"—a boy I like—and she asked him what he thought of me. He didn't come right out and say he LIKED me, but he didn't say he HATED me, either.

I was listening in on the other phone.

I was going to ask him to our club formal, but now I'm not sure. He has never asked me out, but whenever we were accidentally thrown together, he acted like he sort of liked me. I am all confused.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Forget "C" and ask a boy who has asked you out. And if you want to be well liked by both boys and girls, don't be a party to calling up boys. And NEVER listen in on the other phone.

Mrs. Hazel Ryan Is Complimented With Luncheon On Friday

Mrs. Hazel Ryan was honored with a luncheon at the Triangle Inn on Friday by the members of the Nature's Palette Garden Club.

The luncheon will leave Wednesday day with her son, John Ryan, and family, to spend the summer with them in Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Ryan was presented with a pair of Daniel Green house shoes by the club members. Pinned to her shoulder was a corsage made of a gladiolus with velvet leaves and green velvet ribbon, designed and made by Mrs. Harold Evermore but who was unable to attend.

The tables were decorated with arrangements by Mrs. B. Douglas. The flowers were red roses given by the club members.

Covers were laid for Mrs. Ollie Brown, Mrs. B. Douglas, Mrs. L. E. Plak, Mrs. Buford Harris, Mrs. S. L. Horn, Mrs. I. H. Key, Mrs. Paul Lynn, Mrs. Blanche Miller, Mrs. E. F. Settle, Mrs. Ralph Tennesseer, Mrs. O. C. Wells, and the honoree, Mrs. Ryan.

other phone. It's dishonest and childish.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done for a 77-year-old woman with a drinking problem? That woman is my mother, and it breaks my heart to see her drinking. I all began several years ago when dad retired and they started spending their winters in Florida. Why would a loving, respected grandmother turn to alcohol after having done practically no drinking previously?

Dad is strictly a one-drink-before-dinner man. I finally got the courage to speak to mother about it, and she said she could quit anytime, but I know she can't. She drinks alone and thinks no one knows it. I can't force my mother to go to a doctor, and I can't accuse my father of lying when he says she is "better." I am an R. N. and know where she's heading. How can I help her, Abby?

HEARTBROKEN DAUGHTER

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: No one can overcome alcoholism unless he admits that he is powerless against drink. That is the first step in the Alcoholics Anonymous method. Your mother could possibly be helped by joining that group. It's worth a try.

If she were to see a psychiatrist and he unearthed the reason your mother was trying to destroy herself, he might be able to rescue her. But it is a sad fact of life that no one can be helped who will not help himself.

Arts & Crafts Club Meets At Home Of Mrs. S. L. Horn

Mrs. S. L. Horn opened her home on Poplar Street for the meeting of the Arts and Crafts Club held Wednesday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock.

The president, Mrs. C. B. Ford, presided and read the poem "How Old" by Archibald Rutledge and "I Will Not Hurry" by Ralph Spaulding Chushman.

New officers were elected who are Mrs. Howard Goffine, president; Mrs. Charles Farmer, vice-president; Mrs. J. M. Linn, reporter; Mrs. Nona Walters, secretary-treasurer.

Nineteen members attended the roll call and two visitors were Mrs. E. A. Tucker and Mrs. Rufus Saunders. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held the second Wednesday in September.

Mrs. Rafe Jones of Murray has been dismissed from the Western Baptist Hospital, Paducah.

Mrs. Robert Sparks and children, Judy and Gordon Edwin, of Lexington, Ill., and Mrs. Doris Myers and son, Dennis, of Paducah are the guests of their mother, Mrs. Mary E. Williams. Mr. Sparks was here for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Goodwin of Artesia, New Mexico, are the house guests of their aunt, Mrs. William Farris and Mr. Farris. They are also visiting Mr. and Mrs. Garney Andrus and Tom Taylor.

Bridal Shower Held For Mrs. Bogard On Friday Evening

Mrs. Phillip Bogard, the former Miss Jacklyn Outland, was complimented with a bridal shower at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Barnes W. Burken of Almo, on Friday evening at seven o'clock.

The hostesses for the special occasion were Mrs. Richard James, Mrs. Jackie Burken, Mrs. Billy Morton, Mrs. J. B. Burken, and Mrs. Euphie Thompson.

For the event the honoree chose to wear a yellow wrapped dress with a white skirt and a white sash. Her accessories were beige and she was presented a corsage of green carnations with miniature gardenias by the hostesses.

Her mother, Mrs. C. W. Outland, wore a blue dress with white trim and white accessories, while Mrs. Rudell Bogard, mother-in-law of the honoree, was attired in a navy dress with red and white trim with white accessories. Also present were the honoree's two grandmothers, Mrs. Burken and Mrs. Eulalia Outland.

Games were directed by Mrs. Marion with David Nantz, Mrs. Joe Brandon, and Miss Pauline Thompson being the recipients of the prizes who later presented them to the honoree. Mrs. Bogard spent her many guests which had been placed on a round card table in the living room of the home.

Refreshments were served from the dining room table overlaid with a white linen cloth and decorated with a pink floral arrangement. Pink punch, individual cakes decorated in green and pink, nuts, and mints were served.

Thirty-two persons were present for the bridal event.

Mrs. John Long Is Program Leader For Wesleyan Circle

Mrs. John Long presented the program at the meeting of the Wesleyan Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church held Tuesday evening at her home on South Twelfth Street.

"Way With Children" was the theme of her program. She discussed the subject concerning the changing times in this day and age and how one can help the children adjust to the ways of life.

Officers elected for the new church year are Mrs. Long, vice-president; Mrs. Broad, chairman; Mrs. Milton Jones, secretary; Mrs. Gordon Moody, Mrs. Jack Sykes, and Mrs. Ollie Howell, hostesses. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Long.

Committee chairman are as follows: Mrs. Gordon Moody, Mrs. Jack Sykes, and Mrs. Ollie Howell, hostesses; Mrs. Bud Scott, local church activities; Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Thomas Forrest, and Mrs. C. W. Jones, telephone.

A social hour was held with refreshments being served by the hostesses, Mrs. Long and Mrs. Robert Hines.

Miss Beth Bronch and Mrs. Rosalind Nashobah will be hostesses for the July 13th meeting with Mrs. C. W. Jones as the program leader.

Last year 12 more counties were added to the Federal-state food stamp program, making it possible for low-income families to buy food worth nearly $7 million.

Marcia Lynne Burpoe & William Koenecke Are Married At West Fork Baptist Church

Mrs. William H. Koenecke

The beautiful new sanctuary of the West Fork Baptist Church, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Marcia Lynne Burpoe, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Burpoe of near Gilbertsville, formerly of Murray, to William H. Koenecke, son of Mrs. Alice Koenecke of Carbondale, Ill., formerly of Murray, and the late Henry C. Koenecke of West Salem, Ill.

Rev. Wilson Jones of Medina, Tenn., uncle of the bride, performed the impressive double ring ceremony at four-thirty o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday, June 4.

The guests entered the church through an arch of white wrought-iron. Tree candelabras and baskets of pink gladioli adorned the front of the altar with one candelabra in the center and one on each side. The baskets of gladioli were intermingled with greenery. The family pews were marked with satin bows.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Anna Story, pianist, and Bob Johnson, of Hopkinsville, soloist. The traditional wedding marches were played for the processional and the recessional. Mr. Johnson sang "I Love You Truly," "Whether Thou Goest," and "Bless Be The Tie" that binds the couple knot on the kneeling pillow.

Bride's Dress

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her gown of hand clipped Alencon lace in new design combined with nylon crystalles. The molded bodice of lace featured a Sabrina neckline with tiny scalloped edge. The rose designs were embossed with iridescent sequins. Each tiny sequin was accentuated with iridescent sequins forming an intricate design at the neck and extending onto the shoulders. The long tapered sleeves terminated in satin points at the wrists, and closed with tiny covered buttons.

Her Colonial skirt was designed with four deep tiers. Each tier was edged with bands of scalloped lace, high lighted with sequins. Puffed over the tiers was an overskirt of lace with semi-bustle formed by deep pleats extending into a chapel train. Her elbow length veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and sequins.

She carried a gorgeous bridal bouquet of white roses centered with white orchids.

Miss Sherry Thacker was the maid of honor and Mrs. David Howell was the bridesmaid. They wore gowns of shimmering pink peau de soie. The bodice featured a sculptured neckline, and the skirts were long flowing accented with deep pleats on each side at the waist line. They wore long white gloves and carried nosegays of pink roses. The shoes were pink and they wore puffed veils of illusion over crowns of pink pearls.

Bob Lagon of Mrs. Carmel, Ill., fraternity brother of the groom, was the best man. Frank Laxler of West Salem, Ill., uncle of the groom, was the groomsmen. The ushers were David Hull of Murray, Hal Jones of Medina, Tenn., cousin of the bride, and Jerry McNutt of Murray, brother-in-law of chrysantheum. Adorning the

CHAPTER 28 Monday 4:30 P.M.

HIS arms pinned behind him by a pair of grins-faced Apaches, Mako did not suffer himself to be dragged out of the cavernous mouth of the abandoned mine. With every ounce of strength in his wiry, thirty-year-old frame he resisted what was happening to him. Twisting violently from side to side, digging his moss-covered heels into the rocky floor of the tunnel, he struggled desperately to free himself. Sweet relief, at last, as his hands found some ledge and he felt the sting of it as some ran into his eyes. Even though his Apache guard told him it was useless to struggle, Mako continued his efforts. Only when he was flung to the ground outside and felt a knee crush into his back did he stop trying to resist. Having been in the inky bowels of the mine for more than two hours, he was blinded by the sudden state of daylight. It was several moments before he could see. At first, lying flat on the ground, all he saw was the legs of many horses. They seemed to be all around him, like trees in a forest. Lifting his eyes, he saw their riders. He knew every one of these Apaches, having grown up with most of them. Yet they looked at him unsmilingly, as though he were already dead. It gave him a strange, sinking sensation or the pit of his stomach. Quickly he decided he must explain to them what happened to him. Before he could say anything, he felt himself being yanked once more to his feet. The pain of his arms as they were again twisted behind him shot through his mind. There was no mistaking the anger that gripped him, drawing the skin tight over his hutting cheek bones, twisting his mouth into a cruel line. Watching Toriano's right hand unconsciously clench and unclench, Mako half expected to see the hand close over a knife. If it did, he knew he would be dead in seconds. But Toriano made no move to draw the knife from his waistband. Instead he turned to Viel, the taller of the two Apaches who held Mako. "Where did you find him?" Toriano asked abruptly. "In the mine," Viel said. "Was he hiding there?" Viel nodded. "Like a weasel in the dark."

"No!" Mako protested. "I— Before he could finish, the back of Toriano's hand cracked across Mako's cheek. "Hold your tongue," the Apache chief rasped at his prisoner. "I will tell you when to speak." Turning to Viel he said, "Tell me now you found him. I had given up all hope." "We were still looking for him when the storm came," Viel said. "San-ter and I, we nodded to the wide-shouldered buck holding Mako's other arm, 'wanted to get out of the wind. The mine was close, so we rode inside. While we were there, we heard him in the tunnel below us.'"

Toriano flicked a glance at Mako. "Did he try to escape?" "Yes," Viel said. "When San-ter rode to signal you, he tried several times." "Why did you want to escape?" Toriano said to Mako. "You are one of us. Have we not always been your friends?" "I knew you would blame me for what happened," Mako answered, lowering his eyes. "And this seemed wrong to you?" Toriano said, as though sympathizing with his captive. "It worried you." "Yes." "And that is why you hid in the mine?" "Yes." "So you could ride off when we stopped looking for you?" "No," Mako said sharply. "Anyone who says this lies." "If you knew you had done nothing wrong," Toriano said, "why did you not come to me openly, as a warrior should, and tell me my son was dead?" A flicker of hope grew inside Mako. "It is what I should have done," he said, letting just the right note of apology creep into his voice. "But you failed to," Toriano snapped. "Why?" "Because I—because I was sick," Mako faltered. "You were not sick this morning when I trusted you to go to the fort with my son?" Toriano's voice tightened as he added, "When I trusted you to guard his life." "No." "You were not even with my son when he left the fort?" Toriano's eyes blazed as he spat the words out. "I was with him all the time!" Mako protested. "You were with him when he died?" The question sprang from Toriano's lips. "Yes, Yes." Toriano stepped closer as he said, "How many bullets struck him?" "I could not tell." Toriano's eyes narrowed. "You were with him yet you could not tell?" "Yes, Yes."

Mako's mind raced as he tried to think of an answer. "I think he was hit twice," he finally said. "You think he was hit twice?" Toriano repeated. "Where? In the chest or the stomach?" "In the chest." More than anger glinted in Toriano's eyes. "I think you have lied enough," he said tightly. "The last of my sons died by a single bullet lodged in his skull. I saw his body myself." Seeing Mako's mouth wordlessly, Toriano turned to Viel. "Take him back inside," he said, nodding toward the entrance of the mine. "Since Mako lies like a dervish, we shall let him see more of it." The sudden appearance of so many Apaches in the tunnel caused a fluttering of wings in the gloom above them. Toriano paused. Looking up, he saw where the ceiling of the mine had been hollowed out to accommodate a large winch. The winch, rising above the main shaft, had once been used for hauling ore out of the lower level of the mine. At the very top of the winch were thousands of large b-t's. Looking up at them, Toriano changed his mind about punishing Mako. Quickly he issued an order for the latter's hands to be tied behind him. Mako's eyes widened as he saw the glittering blade in Toriano's hand. Expecting to feel it tearing into his heart, he tried to back away from it. But he was held so tightly he could hardly move. Fear began bleaching his face. "Toriano," he said desperately. "I did not take your son's life. It was Reardon or Harrison." "I do not need a liar to tell me what I already know," Toriano said, his voice laced with contempt. Dully he made three small cuts in Mako's chest. The wounds were not deep. Just enough to draw blood. A moment later, Mako felt himself being tied to the winch and pulled upward. Only then did he fully realize what awaited him. Looking up, he saw thousands of beady eyes watching him and saw the flash of tiny milk-white teeth. Then, as the first cold claw touched his skin, he began screaming. "Dix felt like the rankest greenhorn being taken like this. The not-tastic click of a hammer being cocked drove any thoughts of resistance from his mind. The story continues here on Monday.

Weatherman Holds The Key To State's War On Mosquitoes

FRANKFORT — The weatherman holds the key to the State's mosquito control program in Western Kentucky, according to Coburn Gayle, director of the division of pest and noxious weed control in the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

"A combination of additional rain and summer-like temperatures during June," Gayle said, "would lengthen the life-cycle of the salt-marsh mosquito and could cause a mosquito problem during most of the summer."

"Too much rain would also hamper our mosquito control program, which is now underway."

The war on mosquitoes is being waged with the help of a $79,000 item in the State budget for 1966, 68 which was recommended by Governor Edward T. Breathitt.

"We are trying to control adult mosquitoes by aerial and ground spraying," Gayle reported.

The Agriculture Department has its own plane with spraying equipment and leaves another for aerial attacks on mosquitoes. The planes are based in and operate from Madisonville at the present time. Four land vehicles, operated by the department and equipped with blowers, sprayers and foggers, are used to supplement the aerial spraying in areas where planes can not fly. Gayle pointed out that Federal Aviation Agency regulations forbid spraying over cities and towns as a safety precaution.

To supplement the State's efforts, some communities have purchased their own mosquito control equipment and Hopkins County operates its own spray plane.

"Our larviciding program, scheduled for early spring, fell short of our anticipated goal," Gayle reported.

Because of rain 23 days during April, spray planes were unable to operate, and when the weather cleared, the mosquitoes had hatched.

"We are using chemicals to control adult mosquitoes and mixing in a percentage of oil in the hope that we can still obtain a limited amount of larviciding."

In the larviciding process, Gayle explained the oil puts a film across the top of water. This shuts off oxygen which sustains the larvae or "wigglers" and kills the insect before it can become an adult. Various chemicals, however, are required to control the adult mosquito.

The State's spray plane, a 1957 bi-wing, open cockpit Stearman, can carry 200 gallons of spray material and is capable of spraying 200 acres during a 30-minute period of flying. The plane was given a major overhaul last winter and is in "tip-top" condition, Gayle said, to give maximum performance.

"With assistance from the leased plane, which has one-third the spray capacity of the State-owned plane, the aerial team can spread mosquito-control material over 3,500 acres on a single day," Gayle said.

To make room for an increased population in public and elementary schools, 1,000 classrooms have been built in Kentucky over the last two years.

Two State-operated camps for delinquent boys opened in Kentucky in 1965: one near Lake Cumberland and another at Woodlands in Morgan County. A third camp will be opened soon in Boone County.

More than 65 cents of each revenue dollar in Kentucky's general fund goes to education. Fifty-two per cent of all money available for elementary and secondary education is State money.

High School graduation is the minimum education now considered essential for an individual to be able to carry his own weight in society, according to a special report prepared by Governor Edward T. Breathitt's Commission on Higher Education.
